The old book containing the names of the Confederate dead interred at Oakwood was ordered to be placed in a vault in the office to be held secure, subject, however, to the orders of the association. Other books of value were also ordered to be placed in a vault of one of the banks for safekeeping.

AUXILIABY ASSOCIATION. An auxiliary association, formed of young girls, was formed, which will be finally organized in a few weeks.

The association under its new auspice

The association under its new auspices starts off with fine prospects. A large number of ladies united themselves yesterday evening. The entire membership is something over 150 and there is a nice fittle sum in the treasury.

A number of gentlemen have also handed in their names as contributing members, and altogether the outlook for continuing the good work of the organization and on a broader scale than ever before is very bright. About 15,000 of the brave sons of the South who wore the gray sleep in Oakwood, and the annual decoration of their graves in years to come will be a beautiful labor of love in which the ladies of the association as now conthe ladies of the association as now con-stituted will enter as heartily hereafter as their unselfish and patriotic predecessors have done in years gone by.

the Case is Heard in the County Court, but no Verdiet Reached.

The Henrico County Court was engaged restorday in the trial of Charles Kellerson one of the operatives of the Locomotiveworks, wio was charged with assaulting ud threatening F. E. Friedhoff, a striker. The case came up before the court on an appeal from the decision of Justice H. F. Jonathan (colored) who fined the accused

$10 and costs for assault. The circumstances connected with the arrest of Kellerson have been fully reported in the Disparce. He has a very large, red nose, which seems to have been the cause of all the trouble, for the strikers cause of all the trouble, for the strikers took occasion to comment quite freely and jocosely upon it in his presence.

Naturally he resented this derision on their part, and after he had warned Friedhoff to cease his comments, the latter, according to the evidence given before the court, approached him one day in a manner which led to his subsequent arrest. LARGE CROWD PRESENT. The court-room was crowded through-out the whole trial with a large number of spectators. I most of whom appeared to be either strikers, or sympathizers with the men now employed at the Locomotive-Works. Among those in attendance were Mr. Joseph Bryan and Superintendant Davis.

The accused were represented by Messrs. William L. Royal and Hill Carter. Com-monwealth's Attorney G. W. Thomas as-sisted by Edmund Waddill, Esq., repre-sented the prosecution. JURY FAILED TO AGREE.

The examination of witnesses consumed nearly all of the morning and afternoon until 3 o'clock, when a short recess was After this counsel submitted their argu ments, and it was nearly 7 o'clock before the case was given to the jury. They, however, failed to agree upon a verdict and adjourned over until this morning.

Dr. Wharton's Oration

Dr. Wharton's Cration.

The baccalaureste address, which was delivered by Rev. M. B. Wharton, D. D., pastor of Freemason-Street Baptist church, Norfolk, was fraught with sparkling wittiesms, and yet had a vein that was morally impressive. It was a pretty piece of word painting, coupled with beautiful and vivid descriptions. The Doctor took for his subject, "Voices from a Buried City; or, The Dead Past to the Living Present." A BRIEF SYNOPSIS.

Following is a synopsis of Dr. Wharton's

"It has been the custom of late years," said Dr. Wharton after a brief introduction, "to give the finishing touch to a young lady's education by sending her to Europe. The idea is a good one, for, while some one his said that travel is the fool's

"I am glad to say I came back from a two years' stay in Europe a better American than ever. The proudest boast of ancient times was to be a citizen of Rome. The proudest boast of modern times is to be an American citizen. When I think of our boundless domain, on which the sun never sets; of our majestic primeval forests and wide-extending plains; of our mountains, created with beauty, and our valleys laughing with abundance; of our brave men and fair women, I can but exclaim, as Burns did of Seotland—"America my dear, my native land PHILADELPHIA, June 8. -Long before the America my dear, my native land For whom my warmeet wish to Her

"Pompeii was a beautiful, wealthy, and happy city of 30,000 souls, situated on the Bay of Naples. It was destroyed in the year 79 and remained undisturbed for 1,700 years. The very site was unknown and was thought to be five miles from where it is. It was discovered by accident by well-diggers, who found beautiful statues that could only be accounted for by supposing that they belonged to Pompeii. Standing amid those ruins I could but wonder where the people were. I said, 'Where have the people all gone?' and back from open door and gaping casement and yawning tomb there came the response, 'All gone!' But I thought I heard coming up from those streets and alleys voices, some of which I will reproduce to-night. First, there was a general voice of death and destruction. What death can do is impressed upon you here as nowhere else. There were special voices; a voice against sinful indulgences. More people perished; the Chicago and St. Louis theatres. Nine hundred were burned in the Ring theatreat Vienna, and the first sight I witnessed on reaching New York was a theatre on fire. On the walls in Pompeii a placard was posted stating that the following Saturday mighty gladiators would ensanguine the area, but when Saturday came there was not blood there enough to stain a hand-kerchief.

Two things were necessary for Pompeiians—bread and public shows. There

As Mr. Wanamaker had said the paper was a categorical denial of every allegation that has been brought against him, emthat has been brought against him, emphatic and without equivocation, as were his subsequent answers. Mr. Wanamaker further added at the conclusion of the reading of his statement that the committee were fully at liberty to verify by his books and papers overything that was in it. When Mr. Wanamaker had finished his many friends in the room and among the committee pressed forward and shook him cordially by the hand. For the short time afterwards that the committee remained in session Mr. Wanamaker stayed and listened to what was going on.

The evidence given before the committee to-day by Bank-Egaminer Drew was inunder all circumstances.

"The other voices were specially interesting. One was the voice of love. The walls are full of tender expressions. The other was the voice of bravery coming from the sentinel's box at the Hereulaneum gate.

Chile will Be at the Fair.

(By telegraph to the Dispatch)

Washington, June 8.—The Latin-American department of the World's Columbian Exposition has received a cablegram from Lieutenant Harlow, special commissioner, in which he announces that the Government of Chile has accepted the invitation to participate in the exposition at Chicago, and that commissioners will be appointed at once. Chile will erect her own building at Chicago, and has asked that one acre of space be reserved for her. The Government will send a military band, and will make an appropriation of $100,000 to pay the preliminary expenses.

FREDERICKSBURG, VA., June 10.-Prepare tions for Memorial-day and the unveiling of the Confederate statue, which will take place in this city on Wednesday, June the 10th, are being extensively made and rapidly pushed forward to completion. Deco rators from Richmond began on residence and storehouses this morning, and in and storehouses this morning, and in nearly every portion of the city already bunting, Confederate and national flazs are flying to the breeze, and by Wednesday such an array of decorations will be seen as never witnessed here before. The "Burg" will truly have on its holiday attire, and the day will be one of the most memorable in the city's history. From present indications the number of visitors that will be present will reach into thousands. A number of Confederate camps have also signified their intention of being present together with their drum-corps.

PROGRAMME AND SPEAKERS. The entire programme has not yet been ully arranged, but so far it is very elabo-

North yesterday morning.

Chancellor Bailey, ex-member of the House from Spotsylvania, wife, and child were at the Capitol yesterday.

Mr. Dave A. Oestreicher, a young travelling man of Richmond, has returned home after a successful southern tour.

The alarm of fire a few minutes before 3 o'clock yesterday was caused by the burning of a bale of hay in an out-house on Leigh street near Tenth.

The bracing cold of yesterday morning did not last long and those who started out with light overcoats were wishing they with light overcoats were wishing they nect at Petersburg with above trains. HISTORY OF THE MONUMENT.

The corner-stone of the monument, the apex of which will be crowned by the Confederate statue that will be unvoiled Wednesday, was laid on June 4, 1374, by Fredericksburg Lodge, No. 4, A. F. and A. M., and the monument was completed Fredericksburg Lodge, No. 4. A. F. and A. M., and the monument was completed and unveiled on Memorial-day, Thursday, June 9, 1884, with imposing and elaborate exercises. The monument was erected by the Ladies' Memorial Association, and the stone was taken from the farm of Mrs. Downman in this county, It is of gray granite and stands on a mound of five feet and is five feet six inches high. There is a column on each corner of red granite, and with gray granite and plynth base. It contains the following inscriptions: themselves by their flavor and aromatic odor above all others generally used, but they are pointees with the President. By telegraph to the Dispatch.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 8.—Senator Quay arrived in Washington last night, accompanied by Collector Martin, of Philadelphia. This morning the Senator, accompained by Mr. Martin and Judge Gilkerson, the Second Controller, calied on the President and had a long talk. To start with, he handed the President the resignation of Mr. Martin as collector at Philadelphia. He then talked with the President about the appointment of Mr. Martin's successor, and about the appointment of a successor to Judge Scofield, of the Court of Claims, who is soon to retire. He urged the appointment of Judge Gilkerson, and it is expected that he will be appointed. In that event Senator Quay will probably suggest some one for Second [By telegraph to the Dispatch.]
